RESTRICTED TO NARROW RANGE GOVERN

Wall Street Professionals Unable to Move Prices in Either Direction.

New York, Feb. 4 .- The professional limons of the current stock market rerict the swing of prices to a comparaively narrow range. The difficulty of arrying an advance further was becomlocally, and the reaction natural inder the circumstances followed today. These trivial fluctuations do not represent any significant change of opinion on calues from day to day. The professional dement carried operations as far as they have in one direction with a purpose to test the market and learn what results soft, $17.25 (No. 1 southern and No. 1 southern and No. 1 southern soft, $17.25 (No. 1 southern and No. 1 souther the market and learn what results may force by this process. The ofing down of prices by bear operators not appear to dislodge any consideramount of liquidation, and the bears themselves obliged to buy in stocks cover. A bidding up of prices, on the rhand, attracts no notable following, as is stimulated by such a movethat times when the speculative spirit

The condition underlying the market is learly one of neglect and of waiting for jearer light on the situation. The investment demand for bonds continues excellent. Call loans did not fail below 2 cellent. Call loans did not fail below 2 per cent today and the maximum rose to 3 per cent, which makes the record for the new year. The renewed call of the secretary of the treasury upon the depository banks for the return of another $30,000,000 of government funds by Feb. 28 offered the estensible reason for the lessened inclination of tenders to accept bids recently prevailing for loans. There was some increase of demand on the part of borrowers as well. With the effect of this hardening of money rates transferred to the foreign exchange market to lower
